Symptoms	Depression is a silent prison, one that others rarely understand. Even in a room full of people, loneliness is a constant companion. The weight of sadness makes even simple tasks feel unbearable. Conversations feel forced, and smiling becomes an exhausting performance. Friends and family try to help, but their words don't reach the depths of the emptiness inside. The worst part is knowing that the world is moving forward while you remain stuck, unable to find the energy to catch up.
Remark	Take some pain relief medication.
